

Introduction to National Pingtung University

National Pingtung University (NPTU) is a well-known public university located in Pingtung, Taiwan. It was established in 2014 through the merger of National Pingtung University of Education and National Pingtung Institute of Commerce. The university is dedicated to providing high-quality education and fostering professional talents in various fields.

NPTU offers a wide range of programs, including education, business, management, humanities, science, and technology. It is especially recognized for its strong teacher education programs, which prepare students to become professional and caring educators.

The campus environment is beautiful and peaceful, providing students with a comfortable place to study and grow. In addition, the university promotes international exchange programs, allowing students to broaden their global perspectives.

Overall, National Pingtung University is a great place for students to develop their knowledge, skills, and future careers.

This is a very beautiful sign. It's very cute.
We love National Pingtung University.

The Hand Light Pump is an installation art that symbolizes hope and the value of water.

The place where you could have lunch on the second floor.

A large mural makes the space more beautiful and attractive.